Hi Jade,

Thanks for the update. I don't think we have anything to discuss at this point, our position is still the same whereby we don't have any firm numbers yet, especially as we're back to scoping stage for the LP given we have to follow the new regulations. However, we will be doing a final Call for Sites during this consultation stage and then the SLAA work will continue forward. I'd be very surprised if we get to a position of oversupply though as I think we'll struggle to meet our needs based on how things were going previously. I imagine it's going to be a similar story for most of us though honestly. The standard method figures just seem totally unrealistic for a lot of LPAs.

Kind Regards,
